National Schools Championship

70% of Uganda's population is below the age of 24 yet statistics in Uganda suggest that 83% of people under 24 years are unemployed majorly because most graduates lack employable skills.

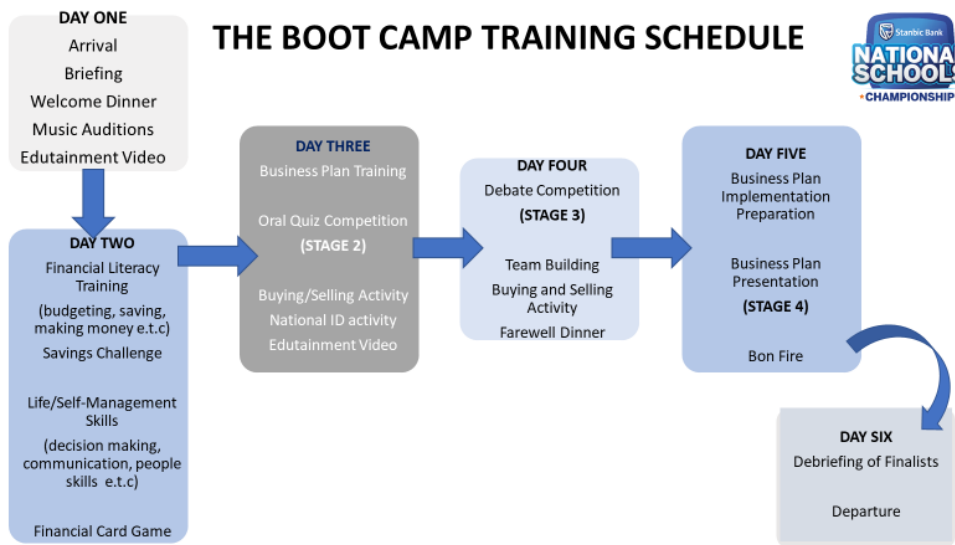

Stanbic Bank introduced a national quiz competition for secondary schools across Uganda to stimulate secondary school students to sharpen their critical thinking, while creating problem-solving skills.

The objective was to nurture young people to develop positive attitudes, values and coping skills which subsequently prepares them for greater responsibilities in the future

The championship trains and empowers students in high schools across the country in entrepreneurship, financial literacy and life skills. They go through an intensive program which molds them into forward thinking entrepreneurs.
